

Century Global Commodities launches Century Mining database

SANDY CHIM has restructured and, at PDAC 2016, he presented his new enterprise, Century Global Commodities Corp. [CNT-TSX] to a very interested audience. Century Global Commodities, formerly Century Iron Mines Corp., is an international company that includes Century Iron's massive iron projects. As well, Century Global has been looking at nonferrous mineral projects, quite a few of them in fact. Chim says the company has, through this extensive global project review, developed a large data base detailing gold and copper projects, large and small, at all stages of development. Chim decided to make the data base available to the public and launched the bilingual (English/Chinese) service with a database demo at the company's busy PDAC booth. He describes the database as a user-friendly bridge to and from China that facilitates information exchange and informs investors.

The Century Mining database, launched in October 2015, was originally built for Century Global for acquisition purposes and covers four major stock exchanges. It includes total global reserves and resources of 5 billion ounces of gold. The total market cap of the companies in the data base exceeds US $100 billion. Updated on a daily basis, the data base is designed to be used by professional and retail investors to rank and compare data using a wide choice of metrics. The database can be queried using search questions relevant to resource markets and the resource industry. The service gives users access to over 800 company reviews and information on more than 3,500 exploration and mining projects listed on several exchanges and contains information on more than 1,500 gold companies in more than 100 countries. Database service features include asset location maps, regional analysis, benchmark and custom tracking tools and the ability to download data.

Century Global is also using its extensive Chinese network and experience to develop Century Food, a food distribution network. Chim says the food industry has enormous potential with, "rising demand from 115 million middle class adults." The plan is to supply, high quality, western-sourced food products to the Chinese market. The company states that Century Foods is run by a separate, team of professionals, experienced in the food sector and based in Hong Kong. The enterprise will generate cash flow while the metals market recovers to put Century Global in a strong position to take advantage of market cyclicality.

Going forward, the company plans to expand its food distribution network and develop and grow its mining database by continually identifying and researching M&A opportunities. A mobile app for the database will be launched in the near future. Registration is free and the database can be accessed at www.centurymining.cn ■

Sandy Chim (upper right) conducting Century Global Commodities presentation at PDAC 2016, Toronto, Ontario. Photo courtesy of Century Global Commodities Corp.